Once there was a girl named Mary, and she was engaged to a man we will refer to as Mr. RIGHT. As her wedding day approached, Mary was LEFT feeling nervous. "There's so much LEFT to do," she fretted, as she LEFT yet another wedding appointment with her fiancé in tow.

In contrast to Mary, Mr. RIGHT seemed totally unfazed. "I'm sure everything will turn out all RIGHT," he said. But Mary wasn't reassured. She worried that there were problems just around the corner... and as it turns out, she was RIGHT.

First the photographer cancelled at the last minute because he had broken his LEFT leg in a skiing accident. Mary called around and LEFT messages with every other photographer in town, but almost all of them were booked. The only photographer LEFT charged double what she was paying.

But that was nothing compared to what happened at the wedding rehearsal dinner. Three members of the wedding party came down with food poisoning, which LEFT them too sick to be in the wedding. Fortunately the bride and groom were LEFT unscathed.

But then a true disaster happened. RIGHT before the big day, Mary got a zit RIGHT on the tip of her nose. There was nothing that could make it look RIGHT, and the more she tried, the more red and irritated it became.

As she LEFT for the church on her wedding day, Mary wondered what was LEFT to go wrong. As it turned out, the answer was... plenty.

First the best man LEFT the wedding ring behind and had to go fetch it while the bride and groom were waiting at the altar. Next the preacher called Mary the wrong name during the ceremony, which LEFT her feeling embarrassed. Worse than that, Mary tripped during the bride and groom's first dance at the wedding reception thanks to her two LEFT feet.

When it was all over and the newlyweds had LEFT the reception, Mary leaned back in her seat in the back of the rented limo and let out a big sigh. Mr. RIGHT turned to her. "Sorry not everything went RIGHT today," he said. "In fact, now that I think about it, just about nothing went RIGHT."

"That's all RIGHT," Mary said. "I actually had a lot of fun today and RIGHT now, I'm feeling so relieved. My biggest fear didn't come true."

"What was that?" Mr. RIGHT asked.

"I was worried the wedding wouldn't be memorable," she said.

The newlyweds shared a laugh as the limo turned LEFT and stopped on a side street. Unfortunately, the limo had a mechanical problem, which LEFT Mary and her new husband needing a ride to the hotel.

(Optional) It wouldn't be the last time things didn't go RIGHT for the couple, but they lived happily ever after anyways.
